1. The first of these is the fact that the majority of the population of the United States is now living in urban areas. This has led to a concentration of people in a few large cities, which has in turn led to a concentration of political power in the hands of a few individuals. This has resulted in a system of government in which the interests of the majority are often sacrificed to the interests of a few.

2. The second of these is the fact that the majority of the population of the United States is now living in a state of economic dependence. This has led to a concentration of wealth in the hands of a few individuals, which has in turn led to a concentration of political power in the hands of a few individuals. This has resulted in a system of government in which the interests of the majority are often sacrificed to the interests of a few.
