NARRATIVE-2501 W Armitage

The current warehouse building at 2501 W Armitage was originally constructed circa 1930, with an addition completed in approximately 1975. The building's façade has few window or door penetrations, and with over 190 feet of frontage along Armitage Avenue, it does not successfully interact with the street. Since the mid-1990s the building has been occupied by Terry Dowd, Inc., a company that specializes in fine art storage, installation, and transportation. The current owner is in the process of consolidating his enterprise and real estate holdings. As a result, he has entered into a purchase agreement with a developer who plans to redevelop the site into mixed-use residential and commercial space.

The new construction at 2501 W Armitage will consist of two residential buildings of 39 dwelling units each, connected by a central lobby and amenity space, a large landscaped courtyard, approximately 5,000 sf of commercial space, and 57 on-site parking spaces. The site is poised to take advantage of its proximity to many forms of public transit, most notably the Western Blue Line CTA station, located just over 600 feet away.
