There is a short, but very interesting, account of the origin of the name of the town in the Historical Sketch of the Town of New Haven, by Dr. John Trumbull, in which it is said, "The name of New Haven is derived from the name of a village in the province of Flanders, in Belgium, which was founded by a colony of Flemings, who, in the year 1294, emigrated to America, and settled in the country now known as New Haven. The name of the town, however, was not given to it until the year 1651, when the town was incorporated, and the name of New Haven was given to it by the General Assembly of Connecticut."
