WHEREAS, After Mrs. Johnson heard a loud bang at her front door, she went to investigate the noise. She discovered a male offender had broken the glass on her front door, and was attempting to unlock the door and gain entry; and

WHEREAS, Fearing for her safety and the safety of her children, Mrs. Johnson attempted to stop the offender from gaining access to her home. Unfortunately, the offender overpowered her, removed her from her own house, and locked Mrs. Johnson out while her children slept inside; and

WHEREAS, Mrs. Johnson began to scream for help which prompted her neighbors to call the police; and

WHEREAS, While unloading groceries he picked up on his way home from work as a Chicago Police Officer, Kevin Gibbons heard Mrs. Johnson's screams for help from almost two blocks away; and

WHEREAS, Walter Labuz was walking home from a local restaurant when he heard Mrs. Johnson's screams as well; and

WHEREAS, Mario Iguanti, Mrs. Johnson's neighbor from across the street, was also startled by her screams for help; and

WHEREAS, All three men quickly ran to assist Mrs. Johnson. When they arrived, they found Mrs. Johnson locked out of her house and bleeding from lacerations on her feet from broken glass; and
