WHEREAS, Her cheerful and caring personality made Rose a natural fit as the Director of Constituent Services for the 39th Ward Public Service Office, under the leadership of Alderman Margaret Laurino and Alderman Samantha Nugent, where she quickly earned a reputation for being a "go-to-person" among the Ward's constituency and an unofficial "office Mom" to both young and contemporary colleagues alike; and

WHEREAS, Rose's warm and professional representation of the 39th Ward in monthly senior CAPS meetings and advisory councils is what made her presence well known and respected; leading to positive impacts and lasting relationships with the community; and

WHEREAS, While Rose's unwavering commitment to her neighbors was well known, anyone who had the opportunity to meet Rose quickly discovered that her number one priority was being a devoted wife, mother to her three sons and a grandmother to her grandchildren, where she created a welcoming home and always made herself available to friends and family alike; and

WHEREAS, In addition to embodying the spirit of public service and being a wonderful mother, Rose and her husband Bud were active parishioners and volunteers at St. Edward School and Parish, where their continued commitment strengthened the Mayfair community; and

WHEREAS, Rose is preceded in death by her late husband, Joseph "Bud" Mayerbock; her oldest son, Jay Mayerbock; and her brother, Bob (Anna) Faber.
