The Bring Chicago Home Ordinance

WHEREAS, an estimate using data from the City of Chicago Homeless Management Information System along with data from the U.S. Census Bureau's American Communities Survey demonstrates that there are approximately 80,384 individuals experiencing homelessness in Chicago; and

WHEREAS, cities around the country such as Los Angeles, New York, San Francisco, and Washington D.C. have recognized that homelessness cannot be solved without dedicating local resources and have dramatically increased their city budgets to dedicate funding for solving homelessness; and

WHEREAS, Chicago families accessing the shelter system overwhelmingly have income below the Federal Poverty Level. The majority are single-adult households headed by a female. Four out of 10 families in shelter self-report a disability, and one in five self-report a mental health problem; and

WHEREAS, providing permanent solutions to homelessness in the City is a matter of racial justice, as the majority of individuals experiencing housing instability are people of color; and

WHEREAS, there is a shortage of affordable housing in the City for low-income households as over 50 percent of all Chicagoans are rent-burdened and 27.9 percent are extremely rent-burdened; and

WHEREAS, in Chicago, the Fair Market Rent (FMR) for a two-bedroom apartment is $1,180. In order to afford this level of rent and utilities - without paying more than 30% of income on housing - a person earning minimum wage must work 110 hours a week; and

WHEREAS, an increasing proportion of the city's households live in overcrowded or substandard housing; and

WHEREAS, approximately 17,894 students in Chicago experienced homelessness in 2018; and

WHEREAS, chronically homeless people have an increased risk of poor outcomes from persistent disease, and they live up to 15 years less than the average American; and

WHEREAS, increasing numbers of Chicago's children are experiencing housing instability and homelessness negatively impacts children educationally, emotionally and physically and imposes increasing burdens on the Chicago Public

Schools; therefore

BE IT ORDAINED BY THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF CHICAGO:

Except as otherwise provided herein, all terms of this chapter and any rules issued by the Department shall apply to the Homeless Portion of the tax in the same manner as they apply to the City portion.
